

My Skin Journal

Thirty days to know your skin: what you use, how it responds, and what actually works. Bring it to your next facial.

HOW TO USE IT

1. Write down your routine and the products you own. You may find you need fewer than you think.
2. Add one new product at a time, and patch test it first.
3. Fill in one line of the diary each night. It takes thirty seconds.
4. Once a week, take a photo and do the check-in.

IN THIRTY DAYS I WANT TO

Three rules that fix most skin

Wear sunscreen every morning, even indoors by a window. Change one thing at a time. Give anything new four to six weeks before you judge it.

My Routine

Apply from thinnest to thickest. Sunscreen is always last in the morning.

EVENING

WEEKLY

WHAT	PRODUCT	WHICH DAYS
Exfoliate
Mask
Something else

Using a retinoid or an exfoliating acid? Keep them on different nights, and use them in the evening only.

Everything on your shelf. Most products last 6 to 12 months once opened: look for the little open-jar symbol with a number, like 12M.

Trying Something New

Patch test first, then add it slowly. If your skin reacts, you'll know exactly why.

HOW TO PATCH TEST

1. Dab a little behind your ear or along your jaw, once a day, for three days.
2. Look for redness, itching, bumps or burning. Any of those means stop.
3. No reaction? Start using it on your face, two or three times a week at first.

Retinoids and strong acids often cause a little dryness or a few breakouts in the first month. Stop and ask your esthetician if you see burning, peeling that doesn't settle, or a rash.

30-Day Diary

Days 1 to 15. A line a day is enough. Skin today: 1 is rough, 5 is your best.

Face a window in daylight, phone at eye level, hair back, face relaxed. Take one straight on and one from each side. Save them to one album so you can compare.

MY ROUTINE NOW

THE BIGGEST THING I LEARNED ABOUT MY SKIN

Keep going

Skin renews itself roughly every four weeks, and slows down with age. The best results come from the next thirty days, and the thirty after that.
